ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, JULY 11, 1907.

The Capitol Kitchens

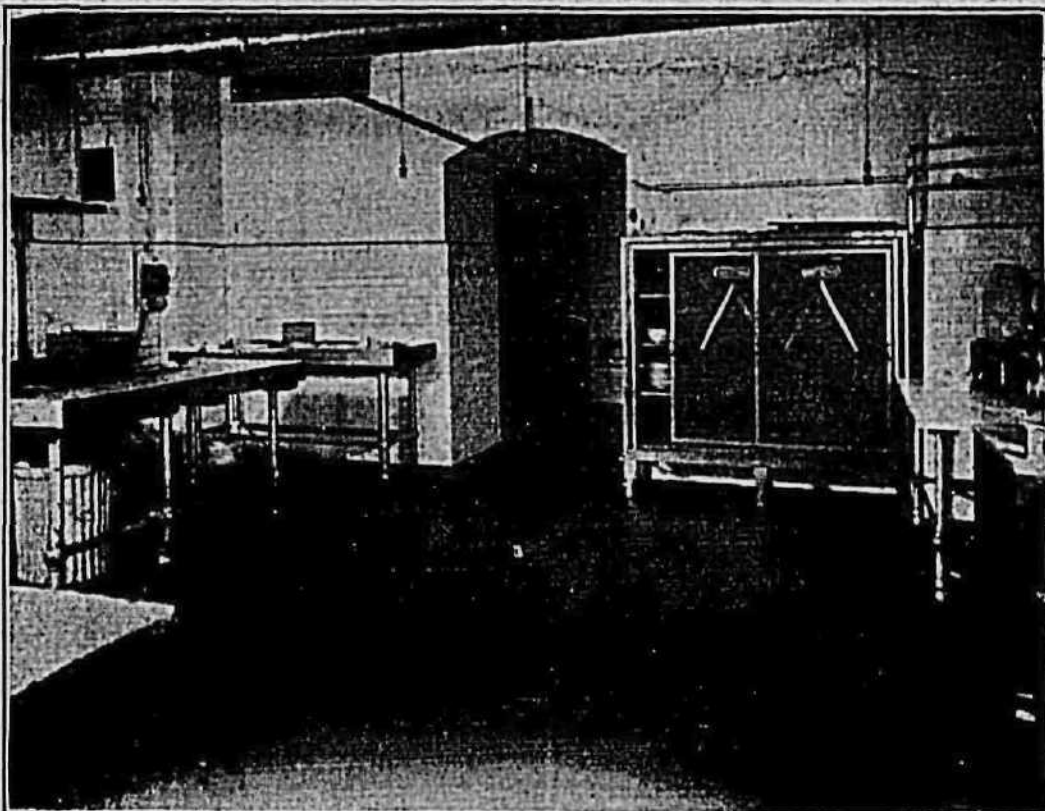

The effect of the Pure Food Law enacted last winter by the National Congress at Washington is gradually being felt in the kitchen of every household throughout the country. Among the many progressive steps made in the direction of modern hygiene and sanitation within the past decade, none will be productive of more lasting and beneficial results than that clause of our National statute book which calls for a rigid inspection by Federal officers of all foods which become the object of interstate Commerce. The new law table. Congress, of course, cannot pass a law making the sanitary kitchen obligatory. It has, however, set an excellent example in the construction of its own kitchens in both the House and Senate wing of the National Capitol. The floors and walls of these kitchens are completely covered with tile, which, as an inorganic, non-porous material, cannot absorb the numerous foreign animal and vegetable matter which necessarily becomes spilled or spattered on the floor and walls of every kitchen. The unsanitary kitchen is one which has the this necessary moisture. One of the greatest reforms in sanitary building of the last generation has been the almost universal adoption of the inorganic floor and wall covering for the bath-room. The modern bath-room with its plumbing fixtures has its tiled floor and walls is a model of sanitary perfection. The kitchens and butlers' pantries, however, in many of our finest residences have not kept pace with this progress. Yet the inorganic, non-absorbent and germ-proof covering is, as a matter of fact, far more essential has been put into such immediate and complete execution that already countless poisonous concoctions which had been masquerading under the names of food or medicine and were being forced upon an unsuspecting public by a diligent system of deceptive advertising, have been thrown out of the market, and their manufacturers compelled to seek other and more honest though less lucrative occupations.

To complete the purpose of the Pure Food Law, it is necessary to second this National reform in our food products by a reform equally as great in the construction of the kitchens in which the food is prepared for the floor and walls of wood or some other organic and porous material, which absorbs in the wood itself and in the cracks between the boards, a large amount of dirt and filth which soon propagates myriads of vegetable microorganisms, among them many dangerous disease germs, which are always liable to infect the foods that are over present in the kitchen. No amount of scrubbing is able to do more than keep these wooden floors and walls simply looking clean. Most of the bacteria which infest these absorbent floor and wall coverings need moisture, and the very washing which is intended to clean the floors supplies in the kitchen than in the bath-room. It is in the rooms where food is prepared or stored that the most determined effort should be made to eradicate all infectious germs. The warm, moist, and numerous vapors arising from cooking foods, always present in the kitchen, form a most propitious atmosphere for microorganisms, which could not exist for half a day in any other parts of the house. Only in kitchens with non-porous and easily washable floor and walls is it possible to remove completely all the animal and vegetable matter which is constantly spattered about. In other kitchens this foreign matter remains even though invisible, and by its decomposition, becomes the breeding ground for bacteria of all kinds. A properly tiled kitchen, such as those of the House and Senate of our National Legislature, can be virtually flushed out with a hose, and it is a simple matter to keep such a kitchen in an absolutely sanitary condition.

The universal adoption of the modern sanitary kitchen is as necessary a reform as the enactment of the Pure Food Law. The rooms in which the food for the table is prepared should be constructed with the same regard for hygiene and sanitation as is observed in the construction of the modern hospital.

CHARLES JAMES FOX, Ph. D.

Confusion at These Dinners.

In his dining room Sir Joshua Reynolds constantly entertained all the best known men of his time, including Dr. Johnson, Goldsmith, Garrick, Burke, Sterne, Hogarth, Wilkes, Allan Ramsay and a score of others, who formed the brilliant literary club of which the great painter was the founder. There doubtless, in the familiar lines of the author of "Retaliation,"

When they talked of their Raphaels, Correggios and stuff,
He shifted his trumpet and only took snuff.

At these dinner parties, according to Malone, though the wine and the dishes were of the best, there seemed to be a tacit agreement that mind should predominate over body. The table, we are told, though set only for seven or eight, often had to accommodate double that number. There was usually a deficiency of knives, forks and glasses, and the guests had to hawl for more supplies, while the host calmly left every one to shift for himself, though he lost not a word, if he could help it, of the conversation.—London Spectator.

Gulf Stream Fruit.

The superiority of certain English fruits has its origin in a cause little suspected. It is the blessed gulf stream which does it. Foreign growers are every bit as acute as the English, it may be, but they have not the right atmosphere. The gulf stream imparts a beneficent humidity to our atmosphere which results in our fruit having the thinnest and finest skins of any in the world. The English strawberry is without equal for flavor. The English grape, though it may not have the fine flavor of the Spanish, has the best skin. The French tomato is as thick skinned as the English field grown. The English apple eclipses its rivals because of its thin skin. Every fruit according to its climate. Grown in a different atmosphere, the English apple would shrivel in a day; here, helped by the moisture from the gulf stream, it ripens within the thinnest of jackets and is as much superior to the foreign or colonial apple as a peach is superior to a parsnip.—St. James' Gazette.

A London Fog.

Nothing has such a bewildering effect as fog. Only animals which find their way by scent can get about in it with any certainty. Birds are entirely confused by it. Tame pigeons remain all day motionless and half asleep, huddled up, either in or just outside their pigeon houses. Chickens remain motionless for hours during heavy fogs. No bird sings or utters a call, perhaps because it fears to betray its whereabouts to an unseen foe. During one very thick fog a blind man was found wandering about a certain district of London. This man was in the habit of coming up every day from a suburb, carrying notes and parcels, and had scarcely ever lost his way before. Asked why he had gone astray (for he was quite blind, and it was supposed that weather would have made no difference), he said that in a fog the ground "sounded quite differently."—London Chums.

Awakening of the East.

Damascus, the oldest surviving city in the world, and the most typically oriental one in these dominions, leads in Turkey in adopting electricity for purposes of light and locomotion. The harnessing of the Barada (the Abana of the Bible) for such ends emphasizes the change which is fast overtaking Ottoman industrial and social life.

Concrete for Water Pipes.

Pipes made of reinforced concrete for transmitting water under pressure have been constructed. These pipes are really one continuous tube, each several hundred feet long. In diameter they are from two feet to three feet, the longest single section being 600 feet. The inside is made smooth, planed lumber being used in the forms.

Birthplace Unappreciated.

Having made $5,000,000 in 40 years in the United States, Abraham Robmann returned to his native village of Spliez, Switzerland, intending to stay there the remainder of his days. But when a stained glass window, in which he took pride, was stolen one night, he sold his houses and contents and returned to America.

FOOTWEAR NOTES.

How Fashionable Women Will Dress Their Feet This Season.

White shoes of kid and canvas, oozing leather and linen duck are to be as much to the fore as they were last season, which is saying much, but they will have contrasting touches of color in heels, bows and collar trimmings.

Black and white effects are reckoned exceptionally desirable combinations in footwear as in other directions, and tan and white are almost as popularly approved.

Slippers, as might be expected, show the extremes of fanciful adornment in slashings, embroideries, beadings and trimmings, while the making of these in materials that match the gowns continues as popular as ever.

There is a new shoe which in the smart set is taking the place for street wear of the too much worn pump. It is a low buttoned boot, hardly reaching more than an inch or two above the instep, of brown kid trimmed with black. The same style is carried out in white with black trimmings. A pair of pumps of dark brown suede are made that are very good style. Around the edge is a narrow banding of brown leather, ending in a tiny bow and two ends. Handsome brown silk stockings to wear with them would be charming with a brown costume.

Dotted batiste has the double merit of being dainty and charming and of laundering to perfection. So it is in demand for girls' dresses. Pictured is one made with a becoming bertha. The skirt is slurred to form a girle, giving a princess effect. The trimming is bands of insertion and medallions.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

An Epitaph of Pope's.

The following epitaph written by Pope was highly commended by Johnson. It was written to keep alive the memory of Elizabeth Corbett, who sleeps now in St. Margaret's, Westminster:

Here rests a woman, good without pretense,
Blest with plain reason and with sober sense;
No conquest she but o'er herself desired:
No arts essayed, but not to be admired.
Passion and pride were to her soul unknown,
Convinced that virtue only is our own;
So unaffected, so composed a mind,
So firm, yet soft; so strong, yet so refined,
Heaven, as its purest gold, by tortures tried:
The saint sustained it, but the woman died.

Von.

In Germany "von" implies nobility, and all persons who belong to the nobility prefix "von" to their names without any exception. Persons who do not belong to the nobility cannot have the right to put "von" before their names. A man who is knighted for some reason, however, has the same right to put "von" before his family name as a person of ancient nobility. For instance, when Alexander Humboldt was knighted he became Alexander von Humboldt. All his descendants, male and female, take the prefix.

Haven of Rest.

If it is desirable that each sex should occasionally escape from the other. It is restful to the nerves to do so; it is good for men to be with men only and for women to be alone with women now and then, and the club is essentially the place for each sex to find rest from the other and enjoy its own society.—London Lady's Pictorial.

Danger in Ellixir.

Few physicians realize that simple elixir used as a vehicle, in prescriptions intended for children contains a considerable proportion of alcohol. This means that in a teaspoonful of child, often less than a year old, gets a quarter of a teaspoonful of alcohol at a dose. To avoid this danger an aromatic water or simple syrup should be used.—Medical Record.

FASHION GLEANINGS.

Shantung Tailored Frocks Modish. Little Coatee of Lace.

Tallor robes of shantung for morning wear are very stunning made with a walking skirt arranged in double box plaits, severely pressed. The coat is a kimono bolero caught in at the waist with a smart belt.

Little coatees of pompadour or china silk, with loose Japanese sleeves with gold slipped over a lace blouse, are very smart.

The advent of the colored yoke and cuffs as contrasted with the rest of the blouse means that many a remnant not sufficient for an entire waist can be utilized.

The latest turndown collars are being worn as high and as closely fitting as possible, and the thin material of which they are made—that is, the turndown part—prevents them from being clumsy.

Large sleeves that attain the proportions of balloons may be upon us in the fall.

Light biscuit, sand color, putty and similar shades are prominent among the new leather belts, and they harmonize well with the pusses and other fabrics of this tone that are so popular.

Pongee trimmed with light brown silk is a pronounced favorite of the season. The gown illustrated is of this material. A bit of velvet on the collar of the jacket gives character to the whole, and frills of ribbon form the bows.

They Quit Right There.

The late Andrew J. Dam, a well known hotel man of New York, was, at the time of the civil war, proprietor of a hotel in New Bedford. A number of colored citizens interested in the formation of a military company called upon him and informed him that they would be glad to form the company and allow him to suggest the name, provided he would pay for the equipments.

"Congressman T. D. Elliott has fitted out a company of white men, and throughout the war they will be known as the Elliott Light Guards," said the spokesman of the colored men.

"Well," said Dam, "if I am to equip and organize this colored company, I shall insist that they be known as the Dam Black Guards."

The company was never organized.—New York Tribune.

Tracing the Bullet.

If a bullet to be fired by a marksman is coated with a fine paste of gunpowder and gum, says the Dundee Advertiser, and then with a thin covering of some friction powder, the latter, as the bullet passes out of the gun barrel, will ignite, and in turn set fire to the gunpowder paste. The bullet will then leave a long stream of smoke behind it, indicating the exact course it has taken and enabling the marksman, if necessary, to correct his aim for his next shot.

75c Dressing Sacques for the Clearing Sale 25c

THE term "Clearing Sale" is used by some when they wish to reduce their stock, some when they have overbought and some because they must raise money. The term "Clearing Sale" has a much greater meaning when used by this firm—it means a genuine clearing out of all goods bordering upon unseasonableness. It is a fixed principle of ours never to carry goods from one season to another, therefore three times each year we give sales that are in every sense of the word genuine clearing sales. They are not money makers or money raisers for us. It is not necessary for us to sacrifice to raise money, but it is necessary for us to sacrifice in order to clear our racks for the reception of the bright, new and stylish creations which have their first showing in our stores. Not one dollar's worth of old merchandise do we carry over, and we make our sacrifice-clearing sales at a time when our customers can find ample use for their purchases. In these clearing sales we expect to lose money and we do lose money, but we take our medicine with a smile, for we accomplish our purpose, clear the stores for new stock, and therefore our loss is a pleasure and our customers are the gainers. Our promises are real, not mere printed braggadocio. We so much more than fulfill our greatest promises that no room is left for argument. We know that delighted customers are our best advertisement. We know, and you know, or you will if you visit one of our stores, the secret of our success. We are promise-keepers. We consider a printed promise a pledge. SPORTING REVIEW.

No International Athletics—Nelson-Britt Bout—Golfers Ball.

THE BATTLER IS CONFIDENT.

Latest Report From Yale Indicates That American and English Collegians Won't Meet This Year—Ball is a Six Time Champion.

It is officially announced at Yale that a letter received a few days ago from Oxford university stated that the challenge of the American universities, Yale and Harvard, for dual games would not be accepted.

The letter says that the athletes in both English universities are very keen on the idea of international sports and are much disappointed that there is a failure to have a meeting this year, but they hope that next spring before the Olympian games in London the men of the four universities may meet and later also meet in the London games.

Battling Nelson must have recovered all his old nerve, for he threatens not only to knock out Jimmy Britt when he meets him in California in July, but as soon as that fuss is over he predicts that he will regain the title from Joe Gans.

If fighters could win their battles with cold type there would be nothing but champions in the pugilistic world. Unfortunately for them, however, it is necessary to face an opponent in the ring and whip him before any medals are handed out. This, however, was made easy by Jack O'Brien's methods, the most difficult feature of all his "victories" being to find a man who would stand for his work.

Nelson recently left Chicago for San Francisco to go into training for his fight with Britt. The Battler is in good condition, though he scales at 145 pounds.

"I'm a little top heavy," he said, "but I will not have any trouble in getting down to the required weight. You know I never had any difficulty in weighing in at 133 pounds, the weight at which I am to fight Britt. They tell me that Jimmy is stronger and cleverer than ever. I hope that is true, for he will need all his strength and cleverness when I get him into the ring again."

John Ball is probably the world's best amateur golfer. His recent victory for the sixth time in the contest for the amateur title of Great Britain, held at St. Andrews, Scotland, was a climax unprecedented and highly sensational. Ball won his first amateur title in 1888. He has a remarkably easy and natural style of play.

Captain Robert C. Folwell of the University of Pennsylvania football team, in an interview dealing with the football prospects and situation at Pennsylvania, has admitted that the Quakers and Yale are trying to get together in a game next fall upon one of the open dates of the season.

There is little doubt that Pennsylvania is anxious for this contest and that Yale men in Philadelphia, almost to a man, would like to see it played.

It was announced at Cleveland recently that Walter Cox, a well known horseman, had paid $15,000 for the pacer Jerry B., 2:12 1/4, by Argot Wilkes. Jerry B. was owned by the Woody Hill stock farm of Salem, N. Y. He won ten straight races on half mile tracks last season. He is now entered in most of the big racing stakes of the season.

Hold Fast to "Bunk." The Boston Americans have refused to waive claim to Outfielder "Bunk" Congdon of the Cleveland. The latter club wants to farm him to Columbus.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Dainty Bonnets For the Babes—Smart Bristle Effects.

Dainty lingerie bonnets, trimmed with findings of fine linen and batiste edged with narrow valenciennes lace, will be worn by small children now and during the summer.

Bristles of lace, ribbon and galloon are quite a feature of the new frocks. Sashes are also much worn, especially in the graceful empire fashion, with the knot between the shoulder blades and wide, long ends of the ribbon soft sweeping down the skirt.

An exquisite cream colored leather grille exhibited in covered with green polka dots as large as a pea.

A tiny wreath of flowers tied with a minute bowknot is a good design both in swiss and batiste, and shaded dots on a white ground, while not exactly new, for they were used last season, are among the effective designs of the summer stock.

Ladder trimmings of contrasting color or material are as much in evidence as if they were a novelty and are used for bands on skirts and also for a matching trimming for the whole suit. The size of the newest bag except where a large receptacle is required is less exaggerated, and leather strap handles have taken the place of chains. Many have the sides carried up in detached flaps hiding the frame and clasp.

Chameleon or changeable taffetas are very smart this season for elaborate costumes. The frock shown in the cut is of champagne taffeta shot, with threads of blue and trimmed with pale blue velvet and deep cream lace. The tiny little jacket gives just a suggestion of a wrap without a hint of warmth.

ATTRACTIVE TRIFLES.

New Hand Bags—Dainty Auto Hat. Close Fitting Skirts.

Entire skins of alligators are used to make some of the new hand bags. One has a head hanging menacingly at one side and the tail and four feet at the other side and the corners. The bags are a beautiful rich brown, but it seems incredible that any woman would carry such a gruesome thing. A little brown auto hat with a low wide crown and a narrow but sheltering brim has two big rosettes of brown chiffon in front and the usual long scarf ends.

Skirts mold the hips and hang in graceful folds, widening at the feet. The waist line has descended to its normal position.

The linen collar worn with a colored bow is popular. Some of these bow

Westminster gray is neither smoke nor steel gray, and danish blue is a deep china blue. Orchid is a lovely yellow with a pinkish cast about as dark as amber yellow. Indian red is a brownish red of a medium tone, and bleu mori is a lovely pale blue toning gray.

Everything bearing the Japanese stamp is popular just now. The illustration shows a waist with this oriental feature made of champagne marquisette trimmed with a lattice-work of velvet ribbon. In lieu of this adornment any banding of applique can be substituted.

SLEPTON BEAR'S BACK

Minnesota Boy Unhurt After Night In Bruin's Den.

"DOGGIE" WAS GOOD TO HIM

Lumberjack's Remarkable Tale Puts Him In Line For Admission to the Nature Fakirs' Association—Hopes Roosevelt Won't Learn His Name.

Withholding his name lest he be classed by President Roosevelt as a "nature fakir" along with C. D. G. Roberts and others, a Minnesota lumberjack relates a bear story which makes the Rev. Dr. William J. Long's animal tales sound like axiomatic truth.

In the wilds of Minnesota, a dozen miles from Grand Rapids, dwells a homesteader named Hans Larsen. While clearing the land for cultivation he has also been rearing a family of seven children. Among the number is a three-year-old boy, who is known as Kid.

The kid left home March 10 and went into the woods. It was three or four hours before his mother missed him, and it was three hours later when the neighbors were informed and a search began. A logging contractor also was notified, and he assembled his crew of fifty men. The remaining part of the story is best told by the anonymous lumberjack, who found the boy the following day at noon:

"When the old man sent the hurry-up call for us to drop drivin' and hike over to the Norsk's, who lost his kid, we broke for the little farm mighty quick. We knew the woods were full of wolves, and if they didn't get the kid the night was due to be colder'n— and he'd freeze to death before the frost fell. We just stopped at the wannegun long enough to fill our lunch sacks with grub and get plenty of matches, and then we put right into the woods a-flyin'.

"We made torches of birch bark, besides havin' all the lanterns there was on the drive, and the ole man spread the whole fifty of us out, and we fine tooth combed that country all night. But we couldn't find hide nor hair of the kid, and when mornin' come I says to myself, 'That kid's a goner sure,' and about everybody else thought the same way 'cept the ole man, and he never would give in if he died.

"After we had lunch we went at it again. Along about noon I found the kid sleepin' in a hollow log. Would not have seen him if it had not been for his little cap that had fallen on the ground. He was in a bear den. I took him out of the log, and the first thing he said was that he was hungry. I gave him all the lunch I had left, and he devoured it.

"I tried to get the story of his experience from him. After I raised the long yell and was waitin' for the boys to come in he did make out to tell me that he played about in the woods until he got tired and then tried to go home, but couldn't get there. Then it got dark; then he caught on to a big black 'doggie and two little 'doggies' layin' down, and he laid down with them and slept warm all night, and he was so tired when mornin' came that he couldn't keep up with the 'doggies.' They ran away and left him.

"Then he tried to get home, but couldn't make it and found the hollow log and crawled in, cryin' for his mother. Jehoshaphat! If that kid didn't sleep with that bear and her cubs and never got a scratch! But how a she bear with cubs, the most dangerous creature that walks, ever allowed him to do it I can't get through my head."

She Kept Her Vow.

"I will never marry any man on the face of the earth," said Miss Pearl Eunice Ivey of Atlanta a long time ago. She kept her word, for she was wedded the other day to Michael Henry Gallaher on the dome of the Georgia state capitol, far above the earth. When Gallaher won the consent of Miss Ivey and the wedding date was set the bride recalled her vow of years ago. "We can get around that," said her lover, "or, rather, we'll get above it. We'll climb to the dome of the capitol." Rev. Dr. A. O. Ward consented to perform the ceremony, and, with a party of friends, the couple climbed to the dome to be made man and wife.

A GOAT IN SCHOOL.

Sioux City Billy Emulates Mary's Little Lamb.

The board of education of Sioux City, Ia., is having a serious time with goats which have been infesting the high school building and playing havoc with everything that was not nailed down. The board recently found it necessary to authorize its secretary to

THE JANITOR SHOODED THE ANIMAL OUT. Information against O. J. Moore, former president of the Sioux City Commercial club, if he persisted in allowing his family goat to graze on the high school campus and butt into the halls of learning.

On a recent morning the janitor discovered a goat in the supply room calmly munching tablets, pencils, chalk and other things not generally considered edible. The janitor shoode the animal out and finally turned it over to the poundmaster.

This time, however, it was not Moore's goat, but one belonging to Mark Naughton, and the board is now expected to indulge in legislation in restraint of the Naughton goat.

WHIMS AND FANCIES.

The Latest in Automobile Veils—Hemstitching Much Used.

Green dotted net is the newest material for traveling and automobile veils. It may be fashionable, to be sure, but I am not so sure about its beauty.

Hemstitching is a great factor throughout the dressmaking world. It is used with the utmost impartiality on all and every imaginable garment and is simply invaluable to the cause of the narrow frills that go to the formation of some of the daintiest sleeves of the moment.

Hand embroidered linen handkerchief bags, change purses, cardcases and chateleine bags will be carried with summer gowns.

For women in half mourning handbags of black suede with gun metal clasps and trimmings are good.

The new cotton velvies are fascinating, especially those with irregular pin spots—blue or pink—and the shaded mauve, green and pink stripes on a white ground.

For smartly dressed girls, especially those of the younger set, are large black sailor hats of very rough straw. These are worn well set back on the head and are exceedingly becoming when the hair is arranged in large puffs.

Jeweled bugs are again coming into favor, and a quaint little brooch consists of two tiny gold bars, on which are perched three enameled lady bugs that are quite perfect in coloring. Another brooch is set with pearls and has an exquisitely enameled dragon fly with diamond studded wings perched in the center.

The gown illustrated is of gray French linen and is worn over a glimpse of embroidered muslin. The trimming consists simply of stitched bands of the material held by smoke pearl buttons.

HOW ONE STAR ROSE

Trixie Friganza Came to Fame From Dire Poverty.

DELIA O'CALLAGHAN HER NAME

Her Curtain Speech When She Played in "The Chaperons" in Cincinnati and Was Recognized by Old Acquaintance Father Was Irish Schoolteacher.

(From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.)

Trixie Friganza, who is playing the leading feminine role in "The Orchid," Eddie Foy's latest success, at the Hen and Square theater, is well known throughout the country both for beauty and for ability as a comedienne. One of her songs in "The Orchid," entitled "No Wedding Bells For Me," has become a leading favorite with the public.

To her kinsfolk in Cincinnati Trixie Friganza is known as plain Della O'Callaghan. She has, however, the right of blood to the name Friganza, for that was her mother's maiden name before she became the bride of the Irish ex-schoolteacher, Cornelius O'Callaghan.

Trixie's jump to fame and a fast accumulating fortune is not any more marvelous or romantic than was that of her father, the poor Irish schoolteacher on a salary of less than $1 per diem to that of contractor for the navy at Calro, Ill., during the civil war.

Trixie's father, when less than twenty-one years of age, passed the severe examinations required by the British civil service for national schoolmaster and was assigned to the charge of the public school in a village six miles from his native town of Kanturk, Cork county, Ireland.

Later he came to America, settling at Calro, Ill., where he acquired a fortune in a contracting partnership with a Spaniard, one Friganza, and married his partner's daughter, Trixie. But disaster followed, even as quickly as fortune had done.

For years he struggled along, having meanwhile moved to Cincinnati. Here he was assisted to a clerical position in the Southern railroad, but despite his capabilities and talent was unable to forge ahead.

Della went out to work when a slip of a girl, and hard work was her portion. Bravely, indeed, the little more than child accepted the most humble employment.

Years after, when Della, as Trixie Friganza, stood before a Cincinnati audience as a leading character in "The Chaperons," a lusty lugged Irishman in the audience, who recognized her and who was unable to control his enthusiasm, stood up in the orchestra and waving his hat above his head shouted in stentorian tones:

"Hooroo! Well done, Della O'Callaghan!"

The house rang with laughter and applause, nor could the performance proceed until Miss Friganza, after repeated calls before the curtain, addressed the audience, which she did substantially as follows:

"Yes, my name is Della O'Callaghan, and I am proud of the Irish blood in my veins. But I am prouder still that men and women are here tonight to do me honor who knew me when I worked so hard for a living!"

The scene was indescribable when she paused. Men and women in the boxes, orchestra and all over the house spontaneously arose to their feet and waving hats, handkerchiefs and fans cheered until she was helped behind the scenes, half fainting and hysterical with the excitement of such an unprecedented reception.

During the remainder of the performance she was indeed the star in fact as in assignment, the audience applauding her to the echo. The Cincinnati press commented as enthusiastically as the audience applauded and stated that many who knew her in her days of poverty were in the boxes to do her honor and led the cheering and were the most demonstrative of her friends.

The house of O'Callaghan was seen on the ascendant, and in his old age the one time Irish schoolmaster enjoyed and still enjoys the luxuries his two talented daughters shower upon him and his faithful spouse, the black eyed and famous Spanish beauty of Calro, Trixie Friganza.

ROBERT BUTLER.

GIRL TURNS DARK BLUE.

She Polished Her Shoes With Indigo, and It Struck In.

The skin of Mary Coffers, nineteen years old, employed in the Allegheny General hospital, Allegheny, Pa., is dyed a deep lavender color from head to foot, and the physicians are making a strenuous effort to save her life. The case is baffling them, and it is feared she will die.

The young woman about two weeks ago attended an outing, wearing a new pair of shoes. She scuffed the footwear and in an effort to restore them used a quantity of indelible ink, which she thought was shoe polish. After wearing the shoes for several days thereafter she noticed that her feet had been dyed a deep purple, but did not say anything to those employed with her. After making this discovery she found the coloring was gradually spreading over her entire body.

Finally other girls in the laundry noticed a peculiar color in Mary's face, but she only laughed when an inquiry was made. She was taken seriously ill, and the physicians discovered her plight. Upon being pressed the girl told the story.

The physicians have found that the coloring used upon the shoes has been absorbed through the skin on the feet and by the blood has been carried through the entire body.

BURGLAR HER OWN SON.

Frenchwoman, Discovering It, Faints in Police Station.

A dramatic affair recently occurred at Villeneuve le Roi, a village about twelve miles from Paris. M. Vadel, a man of independent means, had gone to Paris and his wife had left the house to do some marketing. Mme. Vadel returned alone and found a bearded man in the drawing room breaking open a secretaire in which she kept jewelry and money. She screamed for assistance and the burglar got away through a window.

A gardener started in pursuit and the burglar fired five pistol shots at him without effect. Several other persons joined in the chase, and the man turned and fired, slightly wounding one of his pursuers. Finding himself hard pressed he turned the revolver upon himself, but did not attempt to discharge the weapon. He was quickly captured, and in the struggle his false hair and beard came off, and it was then seen that he was a mere youth of between seventeen and eighteen years of age.

He was taken to the police station and confronted with Mme. Vadel. The lady fainted on recognizing her own son, who had a post in Paris.

BLUE JAYS WHIP A CAT.

Birds Rout Predatory Feline Which Attacks Their Nest.

Residents of Fayette place, Taunton, Mass., recently witnessed a remarkable battle between "Rags," a coon cat owned by Mrs. James Brown, and two blue jays. The jays were the aggressors and the victors.

Attracted by the scolding of the jays, the residents saw "Rags" sitting on a fence under an acacia tree. Suddenly a jay swooped down and struck him a blow on the ear. "Rags" turned and as he did the other jay quickly struck a stinging blow on the opposite side that brought forth a howl. Attacking him on both sides the jays fought furiously and "Rags" battled viciously. Finally the cat turned tail and fled to the house for protection. The nest of the blue jays in the acacia tree caused the attack.

Buya Barn as It Burns.

Selling a barn at auction while it was burning to the ground was the rare feat performed by Clarence M. Ortlip of Oxford, Pa. The barn, flames, was knocked down to James Pennock of Russellville. The sale was an assignee's venture of the property of Clark H. Jackson, in Russellville. The farmers were gathered in front of the house from all sections of the county and had bid the place up to $3,600 when some one smelled smoke. The barn, just behind the house, was on fire, and it was destroyed, with valuable contents. After the fire Pennock, who had bought the property, decided he had got a "lemon" and refused to stand by his bargain, so that the property will have to be resold.

SAVED BY RIPPING SLEEVE

Drowning Man Held by Frail

Arrived on Scene

MAS SENSATIONAL RESCUE

Two Men Form Ladder, One Hanging Head Down Over Pier, While Other Held His Feet and Pulled Man to Safety

Another escape from drowning, one about as close as could result in an ending that was not a fatality, occurred Saturday evening at Waukegan Harbor when Clint Spoor and Frank Nance rescued from the harbor a corn tester at the sugar refinery named Murphy.

The drowning man was hanging onto a coat sleeve while the other end of the coat was held by a companion named Swanson and the sleeve was slowly ripping from the coat while Murphy was so exhausted that he was about to give up, when help came. The rescue was made in a sensational manner. Spoor hung over the edge of the pier while Nance held his feet and pulled Murphy from the water.

The accident happened about 8 o'clock Saturday evening. The two men had been fishing on the north pier and were walking in to land. On the crib pier that has straight plank sides with no possible hold to grab when in the water is a number of old piles.

Murphy struck his knee against the piles, injuring it badly and the impact threw him around and over the edge of the pier, the piles being close to the edge.

Swanson immediately jerked off his coat and threw one end to the struggling man. He seized it and the two shouted loudly for help.

At first no one heard. Then the call came faintly to the men around the boat livery on shore.

Spoor and Nance immediately jumped into a boat and with two pair of oars struck out for the place from where the sounds came. No boat without power other than oars ever traveled so fast in the Waukegan harbor as did theirs.

And they were just in time. When they reached the scene Murphy was just about to let go his hold and sink while the coat sleeve he was hanging to had almost ripped out and would have failed in another minute.

Spoor and Nance leaped on the pier and while Spoor hung head down over the pier Nance held his feet down. Then Spoor caught Murphy and by a great effort lifted him up so his companion drew him onto the pier.

Spoor and Nance both figured with great credit in the incident and deserve much praise for their efforts in saving Murphy. A few hero medals are deserved in Waukegan this season and the rescue of Murphy added two more who deserve the honor.

KILLED WHILE RETURNING FROM PICNIC

After spending the Fourth of July at a Sunday school picnic, playing games and rollicking with his companions, Henry, the 11-year-old son of Henry Meyers of Deerfield, met a terrible death beneath the wheels of a fast express on the St. Paul road.

The fact that the fatality occurred within 500 feet of the boy's home made the accident the more terrible.

The boy had been at the picnic all day and started for home at 5:30 o'clock, cutting across lots and across the St. Paul tracks to get home the quicker.

He stood on the tracks watching a freight train as it passed and failed to see a fast express train which was bearing down on him from the opposite direction.

The engineer failed to see the boy until it was too late and the engine, going fifty miles an hour, struck him squarely, hurling him over a hundred feet.

He was killed instantly and his head was terribly battered.

Coroner Taylor held an inquest, the verdict being accidental death.

FIGHT DEATH IN FOX LAKE

Three Young Men Thrown Into Water By Capsizing of Yacht Saturday

Thrown into the waters of Fox Lake two miles from shore, by the capsizing of the racing yacht "Rodger A." Walter Larson of Joliet struggled for four hours before being rescued.

The three young men were taken from the upturned yacht at day break by a party from the Fox Lake Yacht Club, who heard their appeals for help and went to their aid in a row boat. The yacht was towed to shore and the three boys entered the race at ten o'clock, finishing fourth.

Larson's companions were Roy Herman and Charles Ogden. Larson is employed in the city engineer's office, and was on his vacation. The young men left the shore on a dare at twelve o'clock at night. A driving rain was falling and the wind was at a high pressure. In attempting to turn around the boat was capsized and the three were thrown into the water. The overturned boat did not sink and the three boys held onto the craft as best they might until rescued.

Despite the fact that their boat was wet and bedraggled, their sail torn and out of commission, and they themselves tired from lack of sleep the boys did not desist from making preparations for the race.

The boat was dried out, a sail was borrowed from a friend the boat entered for the race and came in fourth.

FIRE AT PLEASANT PRAIRIE POWDER MILLS

Fire broke out in the charge house at the Laffin & Rand Powder Mills at Pleasant Prairie at about one o'clock Monday afternoon, and before the flames could be extinguished the house had been completely destroyed and a great pile of empty soda sacks had also been burned.

The origin of the fire in the charge house is a complete mystery, but the empty soda sacks were ignited by sparks from the burning building.

The loss will be in the neighborhood of $5,000. The fire caused great excitement in Pleasant Prairie and a terrific explosion was momentarily expected, but fortunately none took place.

As will be remembered it was less than a month ago that this same company barely escaped a disastrous fire by the timely discovery of a box of matches which in some unaccountable manner had become mixed with their materials.

RUNAWAY AT RUSSELL JULY FOURTH

The Fourth of July celebration at Russell was marked by numerous runaways caused by fireworks that kept the assemblage in a flurry of excitement. The throwing of fire crackers under horses was the cause.

The worst runaway was when a team hitched to a lumber wagon bolted. An organ was being brought to the picnic grounds and it was just being unloaded when someone threw a cannon cracker under the team.

The driver had dropped his lines and was helping unload the organ. When the team bolted he sprang for the lines. The organ was thrown out of the wagon and badly damaged.

In a moment the collar strap on one of the horses had broken and the wagon tongue was dropped to the ground. The driver headed the horses for a large swamp near the picnic ground but when the ground became soft the tongue was run into the sod clear to the end.

The whistle tines were pulled loose and the team continued its mad flight. A tree that came into their path was straddled by the team. The force with which they were going threw them clear around the tree and sent one horse to the ground. They were captured before they could get untangled from the harness.

ENTIRE WALL OF BUILDING COLLAPSES

While a number of men were in Herb McCalaren's blacksmith shop at State and Eighteenth streets in North Chicago last Thursday afternoon about four o'clock, the entire south wall of the building suddenly collapsed and fell with a crash into the basement that is being excavated next door.

The blacksmith shop was built by C. E. Saylor and foundations are but two feet below the ground level. N. F. Shaff is to erect a building next door and he planned to sink his foundations six feet.

In excavating the workmen dug too close to the wall of the blacksmith shop and the wall without any support suddenly collapsed. Had it fell in instead of out several men would probably have been seriously injured.

PREACHER AND ORGANIZER

Jim Lowe, Well Known Character, Was Convicted of Fraudulent Land Deal
Faces Prison Term

Old Jimmy Lowe, the former Waukegan man of 37 years, who was recently convicted of having obtained land under alleged fraudulent claims, furnishes a remarkable study in character.

His friends do not believe that Lowe intentionally swindled the down state retired school teacher who set up and proved his claim against him.

"It is just an instance of Lowe's swapping instinct," say those who know the man who resided in Waukegan for fifty years and went to Chicago to spend his old age.

Every Yankee knows what a swapper is. He is one with an itch to trade off anything and everything for anything and everything.

Lowe has been in the swapping business all his life. A Campbellite preacher formerly, and one of the organizers of the Campbellites, now the Christian church, it is said that in his prime Rev. Lowe would stop in the middle of a sermon and go to finish some trading deal, then come back and finish.

Years ago he used to take bunches of wagons and go off up into Wisconsin, where he would trade the wagons for quit claim deeds on land. He never knew where or what the land was and frequently got swamp lands which he would trade off again in ignorance until the late holders of the deeds came back to him.

Lowe also preached for years, occupying pulpits in Lake, McHenry, Knosha and other near by counties and organizing and planting churches, afterwards furnishing with supplies.

In the light of this swapping instinct credited to aged Jimmy Lowe, his friends say that he probably did not know what he was trading off to the down state teacher; that, as always, he had bought or traded and disposed of the traditional pig in a poke.

Afterwards the teacher who had given Lowe his all for Texas lands, investigated and found that Lowe had no real title to the lands which he had transferred.

Acquaintances of Lowe think it extremely doubtful that the face of the old time preacher will look from behind prison bars and regard his release as certain because of his extreme old age and feebleness.

HIGHBALL RACES FOR $100,000 STAKES THIS YEAR

Highball is entered in events footing to $100,000 in stakes and will be busy all summer.

The prospects are that there will be things doing in the $50,000 Merchants and Mechanics stakes at Detroit as Thursday at Libertyville fully seven horses went as good as 2:09 and this event has never been won faster than 2:12 it is claimed.

During the trotting and pacing season of 1907, it is estimated that more than $4,000,000 will be distributed in purses and stakes among harness horse men by the various racing organizations and fair associations of the country.

Already more than 400 associations have selected dates for race meetings, and announced their purses. The Grand Circuit alone will hang up more than $400,000, while the Great Western circuit, embracing twelve cities in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, will give purses aggregating $200,000, and several minor circuits, which do not take in fair organizations, will distribute sums ranging from $35,000 to $75,000. This will be a great year for the harness horse.

INSANE TO BE SENT TO ASYLUM

Governor Deneen Determined That County Insane Have Proper Treatment

PROVIDED BY RECENT LAW

Must Be Tried for Sanity and Committed Regularly to Asylums, the County to Pay for Treatment

Every inmate of the Lake County almshouse who is insane or has a taint of mental trouble, must be sent to a state insane asylum, following a general order from Gov. Deneen as a result of a law which has made it imperative that such persons be cared for in proper asylums under state jurisdiction.

The administration is resolved that conditions which have prevailed in various counties, though not in Lake, and which some time ago were exposed by an investigation committee of the State Board of Charities, must be changed, and with this in view communications have been sent to all county courts making inquiry as to the number of insane at the poor farms.

The usual proceedings in cases of insanity must be followed by the local authorities in sending away insane patients from the county farm. It will be necessary to have all adjudged insane, either by a commission or by jury trial, and proper record made of every case. The county will also have to pay for the treatment.

The new rule will undoubtedly prove beneficial both to the county farm and to the patients who are insane. It is impossible for any county to afford ideal conditions for the treatment of insane patients, and their very presence in small institutions intended only for the poor and feeble very frequently works great hardship upon the officials and care takers.

AUTOIST ARRESTED AT ANTIOCH

A Waukegan doctor, who drives a Mitchell car (but whose name is withheld) was pinched at Antioch on the Fourth for fast driving. Friends with him at the time declare he was not violating the law and they interceded for him with the outcome that he was released without being fined. It is said he was the victim of circumstances—that other autoists who passed through Antioch violated the law but they could not be caught by the village officers whereas, in the case of Dr. ———, he hauled up in front of a candy kitchen and was thus easily nabbed.—Waukegan Gazette.

The above article which appeared in the Saturday issue of the Waukegan Gazette was certainly news to our village authorities as none of them had any knowledge whatever of any such occurrence and they all seem disposed to believe that the story is merely a bit of fiction.

HORSE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Chester Davis and a young lady had a rather exciting experience during a severe electrical storm which broke over this vicinity Thursday night of last week.

The young people had been attending the dance at Columbia hall at Silver Lake, and were returning home along the road leading west from that place at about two o'clock in the morning. The storm had been gathering for some time and was then raging in all its fury.

When they were near the Runkel farm, about two miles from Wilmet, suddenly there was a great clap of thunder and an extra sharp flash of lightning illuminated the sky. The young people felt a slight shock and to their horror saw their horse drop in its tracks.

Harry Lubano was in a rig a short distance behind and one of the young men routed out Fred Stenzel, who lived near and borrowed a lantern. It was found that the horse had been hit by the lightning and was dead.

The occupants of the buggy were both unharmed having experienced only a very slight shock.

The horse belonged to Pacey Bros. livery stable at Wilmet and was valued at about $150. It was insured for $50.

The young people were indeed fortunate indeed to escape serious injury or perhaps instant death.

The Annihilation of Distance

How much nearer to each other the nations of the world are today than they were a few decades ago! When weeks and months were required to get news from across the ocean the old world seemed to be a long way off. Now the whole earth is belted with telegraph and cable lines, and yesterday's happenings in Europe, Asia, Africa, South America, Australia and the islands of the sea are read at this morning's breakfast table. Distance is annihilated and the nations are becoming friendly neighbors in consequence. The marvelous change is brought home to the mind most strikingly upon reading a great modern newspaper whose telegraphic news covers the whole world each day—a paper such as the Chicago Record-Herald, which has a veritable army of correspondents in every important city. In addition to its own staff of correspondents the Record-Herald has the benefit of the foreign news service of the New York Herald, famous for its world wide cable system and for the reliability of its foreign news; also that of the New York World and the New York Journal of Commerce, besides that great co-operative news-gathering organization, the Associated Press.

FLEET IN PRACTICE CRUISE

Secretary Metcalf Insists There is no Menace to Japan in the Move

WAR TALK IS DEPRECATED

Government, However, Continues Its Policy of Rushing Work on Vessels

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf depreciates the warlike aspect that has been given the order for the cruise of the great battle ship squadron from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. The secretary said at Oakland, Cal., Tuesday, that the proposed movement was a practice cruise, and that the fleet would not be kept in the Pacific permanently. He declared that the length of time the fleet would remain on the western side of the continent had not been decided.

With considerable emphasis the secretary voiced his opinion that the warlike interpretation that had been made in connection with the fleet's movement was not justified by the facts. In fact, the widely published reports suggesting hostile preparations seem to be a source of irritation for the head of the navy.

"The fleet which will be moved from the Atlantic to the Pacific this winter is coming to this side merely on a practice cruise. The fleet will consist of sixteen or more vessels, not more than twenty, and its stay on this side will not be permanent. Of course, the fleet will not come here, turn around and go right back again. How long it will remain in the Pacific will be determined at the proper time.

"There is no sound reason or excuse for all this talk by the public and through the press of an attempt to overawe the Japanese by a warlike naval display. I do not believe the newspapers are justified or right in so construing and coloring the cruise of the warships to the Pacific.

"Every year the Atlantic fleet is sent on a cruise. Last year it went to Guantanamo. This year it will be ordered to the Pacific. The long cruise will give the men and the vessels a thorough test and improve the efficiency of both."

Officials of the Navy Department taking their cue from the interview given the press by Secretary Metcalf, say that the sending of a powerful fleet of battle ships to the Pacific is warranted by the great advantages the navy will gain in skill and discipline by the long practice cruise. They point out that the cost of maintaining the fleet will not be materially greater than would be the expenses of the fleet in Atlantic waters and that the navy will gain data as to the efficiency of the ships, the officers and the crews that might prove of inestimable value in case of emergencies. They assert that the Japanese appreciate the purpose of the cruise and have made no protest, saying that Japan would enter vehement protests if not satisfied that no demonstration was contemplated. Whether or not there will be occasion to make use of the presence of the fleet in Pacific waters for its moral effect, it is admittedly good diplomacy at this time to treat the maneuver as purely disciplinary and without international significance.

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1917, by Story-Press Corporation.)

CHAPTER I.

A Mystery Is Started.

That old John Carney dropped dead of apoplexy in his saddle while violently cursing the stable-boy for a trivial delay in bringing his horse to the door was not regarded by the community as any special cause for regret, but that the boy, who was kicked in the head by the plunging and terrified beast, died a few hours later, was looked upon in the village as little short of murder.

Young John was in Honolulu, presumably keeping a watchful eye on the family's sugar interests, but probably devoting himself to sociological studies and charitable work among the natives. Florence, the only daughter, was the mistress of her father's house, her mother having died in the early nineties. She was the only member of the family at home when the accident occurred.

She telegraphed immediately to me, I being the youngest and practically the only active partner in the firm of lawyers that managed her father's affairs. I responded at once in person and was at Carney-Croft by noon the next day.

I was astonished, not only by the extent of the place, but at its beauty and almost baronial magnificence. There were acres upon acres of velvety lawns intersected by miles upon miles of well-bedded roads and bridle paths, while the timber had been weeded out by a master hand so craftily that one was given the impression of an old and long inhabited estate rather than of a park hewn out of a virgin forest within a single decade.

The house was even more of a surprise than the grounds, for although it was, in some respects, scarcely finished, it was already moss-grown and ivy-clad and suggested a Jacobean structure of very respectable antiquity.

Miss Carney was watching for me at the entrance, and came running down the steps of the broad terraces surrounding the mansion, to greet me the more cordially as I clambered out of the old-fashioned trap that had brought me from the station.

"You were good to come so soon," she said gratefully, extending her hand with winning grace. "I wanted to send a carriage to meet you, but all the stablemen have left since the little boy died. I have only the house-servants that we brought from town."

I made the best answer I could under the circumstances, for, while her recent bereavement was more than enough to excite my deepest sympathy, the fact that her father had been our best client for many years gave to my presence at the house a mercenary taint not exactly consistent with noblesse oblige.

Luncheon was served as soon as I returned from my room, and I was seated opposite my hostess at a small round table. I had never seen Miss Carney before and it cannot be denied that the vision of my sweet-faced companion, partly concealed by the palms between us, was in no way unappreciated by my masculine eye. After luncheon we sat in the library and talked over briefly the events of the past few days.

I had learned from my garrulous driver in the forenoon the circumstances that accompanied Mr. Carney's tragic death, and my interview with his daughter had more to do with the arrangement of her future affairs than with any references to the past.

"I wish Jack were here," she said suddenly. "It is so hard to be alone." "I called him as soon as I received your telegram," I replied, "and he can get a ship to-morrow or the day after. But must you be alone? Have you no friends here in the village?"

"Not one," she returned. "You know we live very much by ourselves out here and—and—the village people have never taken kindly to father—or—to me, for that matter. In fact," she continued, smiling wanly through her tears, "they think us worldly and purse-proud and—'stuck up,' if I must say it. And yet daddie tried to do so much for them, and laid out work that wasn't at all necessary and all that—just to give them employment. Why! last winter, when some of the people were nearly starving, he had ice cut in the river and piled up on the banks for weeks at a time to keep the men busy, but as soon as the warm weather came they forgot it all and even said he was a fool who threw away his money. No," she added slowly, "I haven't a friend in the village to whom I could turn."

"But there must be someone," I insisted; "somebody who could come here and stay with you until your brother returns."

She rested her elbow on the chair arm for a moment and pressed her hand against her temple. Then, raising her head quickly with a satisfied air, she exclaimed:

"Why, yes! I could send for Annie Weston, and she would be delighted to come! It would do the poor girl good, too," she added thoughtfully; "she has been ill so long and is just beginning to improve. That's exactly what I'll do!"

"Who is Annie Weston?" I asked with interest, for the idea seemed to have brought new hope into her eyes, and I was glad that it had come from my suggestion.

"Oh! she was a school friend of mine and is the sweetest girl that ever lived," returned Miss Carney. "Her father and mother are both dead and she is quite alone in the world, so she can come just as well as not, and I know she will love to be here as much as I will to have her. I should have asked her to visit me long ago, but she was taken ill soon after we left school and is only beginning to get back her strength."

The day after the funeral I returned to the city and, rather than subject Miss Carney to any inconvenience by accepting her offer of the only carriage at her disposal since the stable hands had deserted the place, I rode to the railway station in the trap that had brought me down.

"So you're old Carney's lawyer, be ye?" inquired my driver, with rustic familiarity, crossing his legs and leaning one arm carelessly over the back of the seat in front of me.

I admitted that I was, with monosyllabic brevity, and we proceeded in silence for a few rods.

"Spose he left plenty o' money?" was the next query.

"Enough for the needs of his family," I replied.

"Pshaw!" he returned, in evident disgust, "that's all ye'd say if he was worth ten thousand dollars!"

Another short period of silence elapsed, and then he began abruptly: "Powerful strange to me how a drinkin' man like him could accumulate so much money an' hold it so tight."

"Wal, she come over here from England with her boy 'bout the time ole Carney was a-buillin' his haouse, an' she sez, as soon as she seen it, that it was goin' to be just like them places over in England where them dukes an' sech fellers live, that sooner or later someone 'ud die a violent death else fur 'em to do; but now, it's comin' on hayin' time, an' I s'pose they'd rather work at hayin'."

The man had turned his back on me completely and was urging the horse forward at a rapid gait.

"Very generous of them to accommodate him when they had nothing else to do, and then leave his daughter as they have, just because hayin' time is here," I commented. "But you said there were two reasons. What is the other?"

We rode on in silence for quite a distance until, at length, the fellow responded in a gruff voice and without turning his head.

"Wal! It may be true an' it may be not! All I know is what I heard up to Hoskins'. I don't take no great notice o' ghosts an' sich. But them men knows what they seen the night after the Widder Bruce's boy died, an' I know that ye couldn't git one o' 'em on the place again with a team o' steers! No, sir! knowin' as they do, the character o' man that ole Carney was, an' the way he as good as murdered that poor lad with his cussin' an' quarrellin' an' fallin' off his horse, 'stead o' goin' to the stable an' saddle up himself, like any man would that wa'n't too lazy to take off his coat when he ot, it ain't no wonder they believed what the Widder Bruce tole 'em more'n a year ago!"

He paused here and flicked a fly from the horse's neck with a dexterous cast of his whip.

"What did the Widder Bruce tell them?" I asked anxiously, fearing that his communicative mood would leave him.

"Wal, she come over here from England with her boy 'bout the time ole Carney was a-buillin' his haouse, an' she sez, as soon as she seen it, that it was goin' to be just like them places over in England where them dukes an' sech fellers live, that sooner or later someone 'ud die a violent death

"I'm A-Gittin' to That," He Replies.

"I never knew that Mr. Carney was a drinking man," I replied, with a sudden interest in my companion's gossip. "I mean," I continued, "I never knew that he drank to excess."

"Drink!" exclaimed the man. "Why! they wa'n't nuthin' he wouldn't do! Drink, smoke, gamble an' cuss, besides throwin' away his money on most wasteful things! When Sam Hoskins' boy was workin' up to the place he seen him an' another feller from the city, a friend o' his'n, a-playin' poker one day, an' one o' 'other o' 'em, I fergit which 'twas, lost seven dollars an' 80 cents! An' as to drinkin', while he done most of it in the haouse, he wa'n't above takin' a glass at Hoskins' hotel every now an' then, too!"

"I rec'lec', one day, a-settin' on the stoop at Hoskins' waitin' fur a shoover to blow over, when I was a-gittin' in my hay, an' ole Carney drove up in his buggy. We was all a-talkin' about Freemasons, an' as he climbs out I sez to him, sez I, 'Be you a Freemason?' sez I. 'No,' sez he, 'I hain't,' sez he, 'but I'm a free thinker,' sez he, 'an' I think I'll take a drink,' sez he. 'Ye won't be a free drinker,' sez Hoskins, under his breath and winkin' at me, as he foller him into the barroom to wait on him, an' sure enough, he tole us afterwards, he charged him reg'lar city price, an' the ole man never knew the difference."

"By the way, what made the men leave the place so suddenly?" I asked, cautiously, thinking to divert the fellow's gabble into more profitable channels. "You know they have all gone, except the servants that were brought from the city."

"Wal," said the man with deliberation, slapping the horse's back with the reins and wriggling uncomfortably in his seat, "they left fur two reasons, I guess. In fac', the folks 'bout here ain't over anxious to work up to the place, anyway, though they was allus willin' to be oblige'n an' accommodate ole Carney when they wa'n't nuthin' there, an' then the place 'ud be ha'nded same's the dukes' places mostly is. 'O' course, we didn't pay no special attention to her."

"When her boy went up to the place to work, 'bout a year ago, she took on terrible, an' allus said no good 'ud come of it, an' that somethin' would surely happen. But they wa'n't no other way out of it, fur they didn't have a bite to eat nor a rag to wear, an' if the boy hadn't decided to accommodate Carney's folks I guess they'd ha' starved."

"Ye see," he continued, in explanation, "ole Carney wouldn't never give a cent to anybody that was able to earn it, an' when the parson come to him an' ast him to help the widder, all he sez was, 'Send that big hulk of a boy up here an' I'll give him a job an' good pay so's he kin support his mother like a man,' he sez, 'but I won't give her a damn penny so long as he's able to work an' earn it,' he sez."

"But you haven't explained yet why the men left," I persisted, for we were nearing our destination and my time was growing short.

"I'm a-gittin' to that," he replied. "Ye see, Carney was such a mean, stingy cuss that, what with his drinkin' an' gamblin' an' other vices, the widder allus claimed he'd never rest easy in his grave. When the boy was killed she carried on like a crazy woman, an' swore the place would allus be ha'nted 'less the estate did the honest thing by her an' give her enough to pay her fur the loss of her son. That night, more fur fun than anything else, a lot of the fellers that was a-settin' down to Hoskins' went up by the haouse 'round midnight, but they didn't see nuthin'. The nex' night—that's after you come—they all went up again, an' I tell you they all come back a-flyin'."

"What did they see?" I asked, with renewed interest, as a sudden idea entered my head.

LIFE INSURANCE A SACRED TRUST.

Responsibilities of Officers and Directors.

Evidently President Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance company has learned the great lesson of the times with respect to the responsibility and duty of directors of corporations. Speaking to the new board of trustees, on the occasion of his election to the presidency, he emphasized the fact that "life insurance is more than a private business, that life insurance trustees are public servants, charged at once with the obligations of public service and with the responsibilities that attach to a going business which at the same time must be administered as a trust."

He also realizes that similar responsibilities rest upon the officers of the company. "I understand," he says, "your anxiety in selecting the men who are day by day to carry this burden for you, who are to discharge this trust in your behalf, who are to administer for the benefit of the people involved the multitudinous and exacting details to which it is impossible for you to give personal attention. My long connection with the New York Life—covering nearly twenty years—my service in about every branch of the company's working organization, gives me, as I believe, a profound appreciation, not merely of the heavy burden you have placed on my shoulders, but of the standards of efficiency, the standards of faith, the standards of integrity, which must be maintained at all times by the man who serves you and the policyholders in this high office."

Best of all, perhaps, he feels that words are cheap, and that the public will be satisfied with nothing short of performance. "My thanks, therefore," he continues, "for an honor which outranks any distinction within the reach of my ambition, cannot be expressed in words; they must be read out of the record I make day by day."

One Point of View.

It was the desire of a teacher in a negro school to impress upon the minds of the youths the benefits derived at Tuskegee and other seats of learning for the ambitious negro. One day, in closing a brilliant discourse on this subject, in which Booker T. Washington was set forth as a criterion, she said to one little boy who had evidently heard not a word of her talk:

"Now 'Rastus, give the name of the greatest negro?"

The answer was surprisingly forthcoming—"Joe Gauss!"

Sad Disappointment.

A verdant-looking old fellow recently entered the office of a downtown woman's exchange, and after a moment's hesitation inquired of the lady in charge: "Is this here the Woman's Exchange?"

"It is," replied the lady.

"Well," continued the countryman, somewhat sheepishly, "I'd like to swap off my old woman for 'most anybody you happen to have on hand."—Lippincott's Magazine.

COULDN'T KEEP IT.

Kept It Hid from the Children.

"We cannot keep Grape-Nuts food in the house. It goes so fast I have to hide it, because the children love it so. It is just the food I have been looking for ever so long; something that I do not have to stop to prepare and still is nourishing."

Grape-Nuts is the most scientifically made food on the market. It is perfectly healthy and completely cooked at the factory and can be served at an instant's notice, either with rich cream, or with hot milk if a hot dish is desired. When milk or water is used, a little sugar should be added, but when cold cream is used alone the natural grape-sugar, which can be seen glistening on the granules, is sufficiently sweet to satisfy the palate. This grape-sugar is not poured over the granules, as some people think, but exudes from the granules in the process of manufacture, when the starch of the grains is changed from starch to grape-sugar by the process of manufacture. This, in effect, is the first act of digestion; therefore, Grape-Nuts food is pre-digested and is most perfectly assimilated by the very weakest stomach. "There's a Reason."

POWDER KILLS AND MAIMS.

One Child Dead, Three Badly Hurt, in Premature Celebration.

Springfield.—In a premature celebration of the Fourth of July with damaged powder which their father had brought home from a coal mine, little Mary Heffron, aged four years, met death and three of her brothers and sisters were perhaps fatally hurt.

The accident occurred at the home of the family, a quarter of a mile south of Chatham, a small village ten miles south of this city. Five kegs of damaged powder, which the father, William Heffron, had brought home from the coal mine, instead of destroying, as he had been ordered by the superintendent, were the cause. He had intended to arrange fireworks with the powder for the children.

There are seven children in the family, and four of them were playing in the yard about the powder, when one of them accidentally touched it off.

Willie Heffron, aged nine, who was in the house at the time, proved himself a hero by running out, grasping one keg of the sputtering powder and throwing it into the well. He escaped with only slight burns.

FORMER JUDGE FOUND DEAD.

John L. Healy, of Elgin, Expires in a Chicago Bathhouse.

Chicago.—Former Judge John L. Healy, of Elgin, was found dead in bed in a room attached to a bathhouse at 338 State street. Mr. Healy went to the place for the purpose of taking a vapor bath, but complained of feeling ill and asked to be allowed to lie down. He was called twice, but said he was tired and was allowed to sleep. Later in the day he was found dead. Dr. Warren H. Hunter, coroner's physician, testified at the inquest that death was due to organic heart disease, acute gastritis, cirrhosis of the liver, and acute nephritis. There were no marks of violence on the body.

The dead man was 44 years of age and unmarried. He was a member of a prominent family of Elgin and a graduate of Heidelberg university. He began the practice of law in Elgin in 1880, and in 1903 was elected judge of the city court. He was frequently called to sit in the circuit and superior courts of Cook county and was well known in Chicago.

Chicago Added to Wealth.

Chicago.—An estimated gain of more than $100,000,000 in real estate values in Cook county was stated by one of the assessors as the probable result of the quadrennial revaluation of all the real estate in Cook county. The land and buildings in Chicago and the county last year were valued by the assessors at $1,650,000,000. If the estimate of this year's values is correct, the total real estate valuations in Cook county for the next four years ought to approximate $1,750,000,000.

Big Estate Divided.

Virginia.—The will of the late William Emmerson, of Beardstown, has been admitted to probate. The estate is worth $85,000. Three sisters of the deceased and 12 nephews and nieces are left $500 each, and $500 per year provided for the support of a brother, the balance of the property going to the widow, during her life, and to be divided among the nephews and nieces of their descendants at her death. William Harris and James Thornley are the executors.

Rejoicing at Carlinville.

Carlinville.—Carlinville was ablaze with enthusiasm when it was announced that the efforts which had been in progress for the last year to secure an endowment of $70,000 for Blackburn college had been crowned with success. The scheme originated with Dr. T. W. Lingle, the president and financial agent of the college, and its completion is largely due to the energy and enthusiasm with which he finished the canvass.

Pioneer Wedded 50 Years.

Harvard.—Mr. and Mrs. William S. Diggins, living near this city, celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage by entertaining 75 relatives and friends at their farm. Mr. Diggins came here from New York 66 years ago, taking six weeks in the overland trip, which was made with a team and wagon.

Advocates of universal peace who really want war to stop and the parliament of men to sit permanently at the Hague or elsewhere, ought to secure the services of a gentleman who it seems about a year ago "did up" President Zelaya of Nicaragua. The story has just come to light, but it seems one of the best war discouraging schemes that has been worked lately. Of course, trouble is always brewing in Central America. The little group of isthmian republics are to the United States what the Balkans are to Europe. If there is not a fight brewing or progressing there, it is a very bad season for fighting. The man who tripped up Zelaya has not yet been discovered. If he is, Central America will not be a healthful summer resort for him. But it happened in this wise. President Zelaya knew that trouble with the neighboring Central American states was over due. He wanted guns and ammunition to be prepared for the next row, and he was advised by one of the Nicaraguan consuls in the United States that there was a big consignment of arms left over from the late unsuccessful Cuban revolution. These could be bought at bargain figures, something like $4 each for guns that ordinarily cost $15. An order for the arms and ammunition was accordingly given, and they were shipped for Nicaragua and $75,000 paid against the invoice. The cases arrived intact, and were secretly taken to the capital, for the president did not care about advertising his purchase. But when the boxes were opened, they were found to contain a choice assortment of scrap iron, bricks and paving stones. Nicaragua is still looking for the agent who sold her the shipment of arms, but she has not found him, and is not apt to. However, he is certainly an agent of peace, and his services might well be secured by the eminent arbitration advocates at the Hague.

The Charming Woman

is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires: neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightliness of step and action that accompany good health. A physically weak woman is never attractive, not even to herself. Electric Bitters restore weak women, give strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, beautiful complexion. Guaranteed at J. H. Swan's, druggist, 50c.

She Didn't Understand.

A small boy who applied for admission to a New York public school, when asked as to his father's business, proudly responded: "He's a book-maker." That afternoon the teacher asked him to carry home a note which said: "Dear Mr. Blank:—Would you please tell me the cost of rebounding a set of Appleton's Cyclopedias?"

When the baby is teething it is cross and restless, it becomes feverish and in many cases vomits a great deal and often times cannot even keep cool water on the stomach. All the delicate little organs of the stomach are affected bringing on colic and diarrhoea. Cascasweet for babies and children makes the stomach right and allays inflammation and prevents irritation. Cascasweet makes the baby happy and well. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Help! Help! I'm Falling

Thus cried the hair. And a kind neighbor came to the rescue with a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. The hair was saved! This was because Ayer's Hair Vigor is a regular hair medicine. Falling hair is caused by a germ, and this medicine completely destroys these germs. Then the healthy scalp gives rich, healthy hair.

The best kind of a testimonial— "Sold for over sixty years."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., The Restorative is sold by J. H. Swan.

The Summer Drink

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the ideal summer drink. Cooling, satisfying and refreshing, it adds to the enjoyment of the outdoor luncheon for it is a food as well as a drink.

Pabst brews for food qualities as well as for purity and flavor. Pabst found the only way to get all of the food-values out of the barley-grain was to follow Nature in making the malt, by growing it slowly and scientifically, and he therefore perfected the Pabst Eight-Day Malting Process. Pabst Malt is richer in nutriment than other malts.

Pabst Blue Ribbon

The Beer of Quality

is a more healthful, wholesome food than other beers. The Pabst Perfect Brewing Process blends the rich food values of Pabst Malt with the tonic properties of the choicest hops under conditions that insure positive purity, while reducing the percentage of alcohol to the minimum—less than 3½%.

Pabst Blue Ribbon is the ideal family beer, because of its food values, its purity and its remarkably small amount of alcohol, making it a truly temperance drink.

When ordering beer, ask

OIL KING, WITNESS BEFORE JUDGE LANDIS, TELLS LITTLE

John D. Rockefeller Ignorant of Standard Oil's Business—Figures Required as Basis for Fine Obtained from Pratt.

Chicago. — John D. Rockefeller, in the witness chair before Judge K. M. Landis, of the United States district court Saturday, told all he could remember or knew, or all he said he could remember or knew, of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

It wasn't a great deal. Mr. Rockefeller said he really was sorry it was not more. If his knowledge had been better or his recollection clearer it would have been more, Mr. Rockefeller said.

Mr. Pratt—Charles M. Pratt, secretary of the company—could tell more—he said. Mr. Pratt did, giving necessary details.

Mr. Rockefeller was deferential to the court, friendly with the curious public that crossed his path or tagged his footsteps, affable with the reporters, genial to all comers, and at peace with the world. In the evening he departed for Cleveland.

Landis Gets Information.

With the information furnished by Mr. Rockefeller in court and amplified by details furnished by Mr. Pratt, Judge Landis secured the knowledge which he sought to obtain, which required the bringing of Mr. Rockefeller from Pittsfield, Mass., to Chicago.

He knows now how much of a fine the Standard Oil company of Indiana can stand. He knows from the officials of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey that the stock of the Indiana company is controlled by the New Jersey company.

The parentage was admitted. The earnings of the New Jersey company were given. Judge Landis knows that the concern found guilty in his court on the charge of rebating can stand the maximum fine permitted by the law—$29,000,000.

Dodge Immunity Bath.

This information was secured without allowing Mr. Rockefeller or any of the other witnesses to give testimony which might enable Attorney John S. Miller to claim immunity for them. A dangerous question was asked by one of the attorneys for the government, but Judge Landis stopped the answer.

"I do not want that," he said. He secured what he did want, and now is in a position to fix the amount of the penalty.

Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Pratt were the only two officials of the New Jersey company called on to testify. John D. Archbold, William Rockefeller and the other vice presidents, secretaries, treasurers and officials of the company sat in readiness and apparent willingness to testify. They were not needed.

Judge K. M. Landis.

Facts Obtained in Court.

What Judge Landis secured from Mr. Rockefeller was:

The fact that the outstanding capitalization of the New Jersey company is about $100,000,000.

The fact that it pays approximately 40 per cent. dividends.

What he secured from Mr. Pratt was:

The fact that the outstanding capital stock of the New Jersey company is $98,300,000.

That it made $81,300,000 net profits in 1903.

That it made $61,500,000 net profits in 1904.

That it made $57,000,000 net profits in 1905.

That the Standard Oil company of New Jersey controls the Standard Oil company of Indiana, which is the company found guilty in the rebating trial.

John D. Rockefeller Testifies.

John D. Rockefeller, being sworn, testified as follows:

The Court—Mr. Rockefeller, have you any official connection with the Standard Oil company of New Jersey? A.—I am the president, but the position is purely honorary, and has been for the last eight or ten years, as I have not been rendering any service whatever.

Q.—Do you know what the outstanding capital stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is? A.—I think that it is about $100,000,000, the outstanding. I could not state definitely, your honor.

Q.—Approximately, $100,000,000? A.—That is my idea, yes, sir; approximately $100,000,000 of the outstanding.

Q.—Generally speaking, what is the business of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey—production, distribution, and sale of oil? A.—Well, your honor, as I have been so long out of business and out of this business I could not well answer that question. It is a dozen years

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

Standard Oil Magnate Who Was Unable to Tell Judge Landis Much About Oil Trust.

lyn, N. Y.

Q.—What is your business? A.—I am secretary of the Standard Oil company, in the oil business.

Q.—Which Standard Oil company? A.—Of New Jersey.

Q.—How long have you been secretary of that company? A.—Five or six years all told.

Q.—Did you hear Mr. Rockefeller's statement as to the amount of stock outstanding in that company? A.—I did.

Q.—He approximated it. Is it $100,000,000? A.—I think it is not quite that. It is about $98,300,000. Something like that. That is within a few dollars of the amount.

Q.—Did you hear his statement as to the approximate amount of dividends paid by that company during the years 1903, 1904 and 1905? A.—I did.

Q.—Is that your understanding? A.—That is my understanding.

Q.—He was uncertain as to the exact amount. He stated 40 per cent. A.—I think that was correct, your honor. That was the average.

Q.—Do you remember the net earnings of that company during those three years? A.—I do, clearly, your honor. Would you like them? I think for the first year they were $81,300,000 approximately.

Q.—In 1903? A.—In 1903. Those are the years you speak of.

Q.—Now for 1904? A.—For 1904, as near as I can remember, I should say they were $61,500,000.

Q.—And 1905? A.—A trifle over $57,000,000, as near as I remember.

Q.—Now, generally speaking, is the capital represented by the outstanding stock something under $100,000,000 of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey employed in the production, refinement, distribution and sale of oil, the products of petroleum? A.—Oh, your honor, the properties are worth vastly more than that.

Q.—That is what the capital is employed in, is it? A.—It is.

Q.—Do you recall what proportion of the stock of the Union Tank line company the Standard Oil company of New Jersey holds? A.—I do not recall the proportions, but I think it controls a majority of the stock.

Q.—Do you know what the net earnings of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey were during the years of 1903, 1904, and 1905? A.—I don't know, your honor, exactly, but approximately about 40 per cent. on the outstanding stock. I would not undertake to speak absolutely definite, but that is a close approximate.

Q.—Do you know what the net earnings of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey were during the years of 1903, 1904, and 1905? A.—I don't know, your honor, exactly, but approximately about 40 per cent. on the outstanding stock. I would not undertake to speak absolutely definite, but that is a close approximate.

LESSON FOR WORLD

NAVY TO SHOW HOW WELL IT CAN PROTECT EITHER COAST.

PURPOSE OF MANEUVER

Demonstration Will Be in Interest of International Peace—Germany Thinks Japan Will Fight.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—Admiral Brownson came to Oyster Bay to take lunch with the president, professing entire ignorance of the maneuver plans. When he left Sagamore Hill to take the train for Washington, the admiral had one thought which he wished emphasized—that it was desirable and important to demonstrate to the world how quickly the American navy could transfer its fighting strength from one ocean to the other.

This was distinctly an addition to the president's previous statement, issued through Secretary Loeb, wherein the object of the maneuver was said to be an exercise movement for the benefit of the navy, to perfect its training in fleet exercise on an extended scale, the purpose and effect of the plan being for the benefit of the navy alone.

President Roosevelt proposes to give the world a somewhat startling demonstration of what the American navy is capable of doing to protect either or both of the extended shores of the United States. As Admiral Brownson said, "there is no time like the present for such a demonstration," a time when the United States is at perfect peace with every nation. The proposed demonstration with the fleet can be looked upon in no other light than that President Roosevelt intends to use the American navy for exactly that purpose for which he has advocated its augmentation—a guaranty of international peace.

Germany Expects a War. Berlin.—The conviction of an ultimate conflict between Japan and the United States appears to be widespread in Germany. It is one of the subjects certain to be referred to wherever diplomats and military and naval officials, and others accustomed to follow international politics, meet.

It is believed by many that the group of ruling statesmen in Japan are preparing to fight the United States for the mastery of the Pacific, regardless of the San Francisco incidents.

Sakamoto Scoffs at Our Navy. Tokio. — The Hochi prints an interview with Admiral Sakamoto in which the admiral is quoted as follows:

"Should hostilities break out between Japan and America the result would be indecisive, owing to a want of proper bases of operations. Such bases as exist are too far distant for practical purposes. Even the nearest bases, namely, the Pescadores, Cavite and Manila, are at a distance of 600 miles from one another.

"Even if the Washington government should decide on a war, it is doubtful if the Americans serving in the navy are sufficiently patriotic to fight. American naval officers are brilliant figures at balls and social gatherings, but they are very deficient in professional training and practice. It is too much to expect a burning patriotism in the American naval service in case of war with Japan. It is very likely that most of the crews would desert and leave the ships."

TWENTY-ONE DEAD IN STORM.

Wisconsin Tornado Reports Coming In, Slowly—Many Injured.

St. Paul, Minn.—Twenty-one are now known to have been killed in the tornado which swept a path 100 miles long and from a mile to a few rods in width through the counties of Central Wisconsin on Wednesday night. Details of the damage done by the tornado are still coming in very slowly and it is believed that the death list will be somewhat increased when all points visited by the tornado are heard from. In addition to those killed a score or more were injured, some of them so seriously that their recovery is doubtful. The property damage undoubtedly will be more than $100,000.

Two Buildings Collapse.

GOUP BY BANDIT RAISULI

COMMANDER OF SULTAN'S BODY-GUARD MADE PRISONER.

Demands Payment of $200,000 and Reappointment as Governor of Tangier as Price of Release.

Tangiers, Morocco.—Kaid Gen. Sir Harry MacLean, commander of the sultan's bodyguard and, next to the sultan, the most influential man in Morocco, has been captured by Raisuli, the bandit chief. Raisuli has announced that he will hold the general prisoner until the sultan grants the terms which he, Raisuli, demands for his own pardon and MacLean's release.

Gen. MacLean is a former officer of the British army and is descended from an old Scotch family. All his influence with the sultan has been exercised in the interests of civilization and humanity, and he is universally respected even among the most fanatical of the foreign-hating Moors.

The British legation here confirms the announcement of the capture of Gen. MacLean.

Raisuli says he will hold Gen. MacLean until he is granted the following terms for his surrender:

1. The reconstruction of his house at Zinat.

2. The payment of an indemnity of $100,000 duros (about $200,000).

3. His reappointment as governor of Tangier and of Fehs and his appointment as commander of police.

The sultan is launching a punitive expedition against the Adjera tribe of this vicinity owing to the fact that they have not paid their tribute to his majesty's collectors.

London. — The capture of MacLean, the virtual commander of the forces of the sultan of Morocco, by Raisuli is regarded here as a Gilbertian masterpiece of the bandit, whose successful career started with the seizure of Ian Percival. Evidently MacLean was completely hoodwinked. Only Tuesday he telegraphed to the sultan Raisuli had agreed to all the former's proposals. There is little doubt here that the bandit will hold MacLean as hostage until he is reinstated in power and otherwise indemnified for the losses which he has sustained since he was driven from the governorship of Tangier.

HAYWOOD CASE NEARS END.

Verdict or Disagreement Is Expected Within Two Weeks.

Boise, Idaho.—A beginning of the end of the Haywood trial was reached Friday. Counsel for the defense announced that, with the exception of three or four witnesses, their case in direct is before the jury. Charles H. Moyer, the accused president of the Western Federation of Miners, will be called as witness on Monday next. He will be followed by William D. Haywood, the defendant.

It is now expected that the rebuttal evidence in behalf of the state will commence on Wednesday or possibly on Tuesday, much depending on the extent of the cross-examination of Moyer and Haywood. Counsel for the defense and prosecution after the adjournment were willing to admit the possibility of a verdict or disagreement in two weeks.

RATES RAISED IN REVENGE.

Serious Charge Made Against Several Western Railroads.

Washington.—A serious charge was made in a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission Friday against the Missouri Pacific and a number of other western railroads by corporations, partnerships and individuals engaged in the flour milling trade in Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

It is alleged that an advance in rates on flour was made by the defendant companies in revenge against the complainants because of a petition which was filed with the interstate commerce commission less than a month ago alleging that the railroads charged unjust and unreasonable rates to the Atlantic markets as compared with the rates on flour and wheat products from Minneapolis and other northwestern points.

Levee Breaks; Heavy Damage.

Bakersfield, Cal.—The Buena Vista lake levee has broken, flooding 30,900 acres of land belonging to Miller and Lux and the Tevis Land company and causing $1,000,000 damage. The Sunset railway has been put out of commission and the oil fields are cut off from communication with this city.

Fatal Explosion of Gas.

Plattsburgh, Neb.—S. Grassman was instantly killed and E. O. Wurl seriously injured Sunday evening by an explosion of gas in the basement of the building occupied by them as a grocery store.

PRISON FOR SCHMITZ

FRISCO MAYOR IS GIVEN FIVE YEARS IN SAN QUENTIN.

SENTENCE IS CHEERED

Remarkable Demonstration of Approval by Crowd—Convict Objects to Being "Lectured" by Court.

San Francisco.—Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, convicted of extortion, was Monday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. When the sentence was pronounced there was a remarkable outburst of applause from the hundreds of persons who crowded Judge Dunne's courtroom. Judge Dunne sentenced Mayor Schmitz to imprisonment in San Quentin penitentiary. Sentence followed the recent conviction of Schmitz for extorting $1,175 from French restaurant keepers of San Francisco.

As the last words of the sentence fell from the judge's lips the great crowd that had stood throughout the dramatic scene, sent up a thunderous cheer. "Good for you!" shouted a man in the back of the room. His ejaculation was echoed and re-echoed by one after another of the spectators. Several threw their hats into the air, others scrambled upon chairs to look over the shoulders of the crowd and the greatest confusion prevailed.

Attorney Fallall of the defense, raising his voice above the din, called out to Judge Dunne:

"Your honor, this cheering is a very unseemly occurrence."

"Well," retorted Judge Dunne, with spirit, "if we had a sheriff worthy of the name it would have been stopped instantly."

Sheriff Thomas O'Neill was standing inside the rail. He turned to the court and protested. "Nobody could have stopped that, your honor."

The sentence of the convicted mayor or was in one respect without a parallel in the criminal annals of San Francisco. Half a dozen times Judge Dunne was interrupted by Schmitz, who protested in strong words against the "delivery of a lecture" instead of the announcement of judgment. He accused the court of unnecessarily humiliating him, and giving opportunity for further humiliation by the reporting of his remarks in the press. Once, replying to the prisoner, Judge Dunne said:

"Such brazen effrontery was probably no more than should be expected, and it is the duty of the court to bear it in patience."

WIRE COMPANIES ACCUSED.

Postal and Western Union Are to Be Investigated.

New York.—Acting on a petition filed by Attorney General William S. Jackson, Justice M. W. Platteau in the supreme court Monday appointed R. Burnham Moffatt, an attorney, to take evidence based on the attorney general's allegations that the Postal Telegraph & Cable company and the Western Union Telegraph company have formed an illegal combination to increase rates in New York and other states. Mr. Moffatt announced that the first hearing in the matter will be held at his office in Wall street July 16.

In his petition Attorney General Jackson charges that the alleged combine was formed in this city last January and is a monopoly in restraint of competition in the telegraph business. He asks that Robert C. Clowry, Clarence H. Mackay, George J. Gould, E. H. Harriman, Morris K. Jessup and other officials of both companies be summoned to produce records, books, etc., and give testimony.

Long Live The King!

is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Remedies!" of which Mrs. Julia Ryder Paine of Truro, Mass., says: "It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan, druggist. 50c and $1.00.
